"STAY ON THE FARM" TAFT TOLD HEARERS

President in Address at Jackson Deprecates the Drift of Young Men From Farm to City.

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 2.—President Taft, a three ring circus, a gala day at the State Fair, a balloon ascension and a thrilling parachute leap gave Jackson yesterday a share of honors unique and unparalleled in the history of the old city. "Uncle Joe" Cannon was to have been an added feature of the city last night, but he had been summoned to the East on business and passed through Jackson in the afternoon without stopping. Secretary of War Dickinson rejoined the Presidential party yesterday afternoon.

President Taft left at midnight for Columbus, Miss., the birthplace of Secretary Dickinson. He will spend three hours there and will reach Birmingham, Ala., this evening.

Their First President.

The railroads handled 30,000 excursionists to Jackson and they were fairly saturated with pleasure. It was an event of most of their lives to see a President of the United States, for Mr. Taft is the first one ever to visit Jackson. Mr. McKinley passed through the city on one occasion, but made only a few remarks from the end of his car.

The President had a long but pleasant day. He seemed to enjoy the big crowds that choked the streets and gave him a demonstrative welcome wherever he went. He lunched with Governor and Mrs. Noel and met a number of the State's citizens. He spent an hour going through the various exhibits at the fair and was particularly interested in the agricultural displays. These displays so impressed the President that he devoted most of his address to the importance of farming and to a deprecation of the tendency of young men to drift to cities, where they think they can be "where the wheels go round."

Tribute to the Farmer.

In the late afternoon the President had an hour's automobile ride about the city and then enjoyed a brief period of rest before attending a banquet in his honor.

At the fair grounds the President said: "I am glad to be in a State in which agriculture is your chief trade and occupation. We must admit that the occupation of the farmer is among the one or two most important occupations that go to make this country great—and a State which is great because of it, is entitled to recognition as typifying Americanism in the highest degree.

"We have arrived at a time in the development of this country and the world when old methods of agriculture must be discarded if we would keep up with the procession. Land is becoming too valuable to treat it in the old wasteful way. The profession of the farmer has become a real scientific profession and I am glad to note that Mississippi is at the head of the column in having one of the best agricultural institutions in the country.

Worth of the Farm.

"The truth is, if I were advising a young man in this country as to his future profession, I should say to him that there was probably a greater opportunity for real reward in assiduity, industry, attention to business and scientific investigation in the profession of agriculture than in any other profession that this country affords.

"The tendency toward the country and country life is a tendency that we ought to encourage in this country. It tends towards sane and philosophical and quiet consideration of the problems of life. It takes out that nervous exhaustion of energy, it takes out the gambling spirit; it takes out of the life of the citizen that hurry and rapidity that carries men quickly to their grave; and it makes for the happiness of individuals and families far greater than the pursuit of any trade or profession that brings you into the maelstrom of great city life.

"There is much to be done in the way of education of your lawyers. I am glad to think your large negro population is well adapted to the cultivation of the soil, and that through that cultivation of provident methods they may grow to be good citizens and useful to the community by acquiring land, as they have acquired it in the East, and becoming strong farmers and useful to the entire State.

"The question of river transportation and water transportation is now being agitated in a way that never before commanded the attention of the whole population of the United States. I am sure I speak for the whole people in saying they do not propose to be niggardly in the issuing of bonds or the appropriation of money out of the treasury to make improvements that will be really improvements in the matter of transportation and the matter of affecting rates. But we have to be certain what it is we are doing and that

TAMMANY WINS IN NEW YORK CITY

JUDGE GAYNOR IS ELECTED BY ABOUT SIXTY THOUSAND.

Virginia Gives Largest Democratic Majority in History—Democratic Gains in All Sections.

Special to Daily Sun.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 2.—Returns received here from the elections held throughout the country yesterday show that the Democrats have gained in all sections, and in some sections made record gains, notwithstanding that the Republicans and Labor parties made a hard fight to defeat them.

Tammany Ticket Elected.

In New York City the Tammany ticket was elected, Judge Gaynor winning the mayoralty contest over Bannard, Republican, and Hearst, Independent, by about sixty thousand plurality. A whirlwind campaign was conducted in New York and every effort was made to overthrow Tammany.

Record Vote in Virginia.

Returns from Virginia indicate that the State has given the largest Democratic vote in its history, despite the fact that President Taft used his influence in behalf of the Republican ticket

Dispatches from all sections of the country show Democratic gains.

SUPREME COURT DECIDES THAT SHIPP MUST SUFFER

Tennessee Ex-Sheriff and Five Others Are to Be Sentenced on Contempt Charge.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 2.—The unusual proceeding of an arraignment for sentence at the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States will occur two weeks from now, in accordance with an announcement made yesterday in the cases of Joseph H. Shipp of Chattanooga, Tenn., and five co-defendants, charged with contempt. The court denied motions for a rehearing of the cases.

The cases originated in the court's deciding in March, 1906, to consider the appeal of a negro, Ed Johnson, from a verdict of the Tennessee courts holding him guilty and sentencing him to be hanged on a charge of criminal assault. The night after the determination of the Supreme Court to review the proceedings in the case was wired to Chattanooga, where Johnson was confined in jail, a number of persons stormed the jail and took him out and lynched him.

Deny a Rehearing.

The court was much incensed over the lynching, and at its instance the Attorney-General instituted proceedings against Shipp, who was the sheriff, and the jailer and twenty-five others supposed to have been implicated in the lynching, charging them with contempt of the Supreme Court. Many of the accused were exonerated and in the end only six were found guilty. These were Sheriff Shipp, his deputy, Jeremiah Gibson, who was the jailer, Luther Williams, Nick Nolan, Henry Padgett and William Mayes, residents of Chattanooga.

The finding of the court was announced in May, just before the close of the last term of court, but all the defandants entered motions for a rehearing, which had the effect of postponing action until the present term.

The court yesterday, through Chief Justice Fuller, announced its denial of the motions, the chief justice stating at the same time the decision to have the defendants appear on Nov. 15 to receive sentence.

It will be the duty of Marshal Wright to present the men in court, but he said yesterday that he expected all of them to appear to hear the court's verdict, which would relieve him of the necessity of going to Chattanooga after them.

The court has the discretion to either fine or imprison the men or to inflict both penalties, and no intimation has been given as to what course may be pursued. It is only known that from the beginning of the proceedings the court has appeared exceptionally interested in the case and is believed to feel that an example must be made to prevent other indignities to the court.

The only instance of a sentence for contempt in the court's history occurred in 1875, when John Chiles, who was concerned in dealings in Texas indemnity bonds, contrary to an order of the court, was ordered to pay a fine of $250 for contempt. This time there will be six men instead of one and the proceedings will therefore be unprecedented as regards numbers.

All the defendants assert innocence. Shipp and Gibson declare there was no advance indication of violence to Johnson and say that otherwise they would have taken better precaution. Most of the other men implicated claim not to have been present when the negro was killed by the mob.

Escaped Convict Surrenders Said He Was Starving

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Nov. 2.—Realizing that his act meant fully fifteen years' service in the Alabama penitentiary Frank Bell, a cotton wearer, 29 years of age, sentenced in June, 1904, for twenty years for killing Frank Stewart, a contractor, in a saloon in Huntsville, Ala., made a full confession one week ago to W. O. Middleton at Waverly, in Camden county, and is in Glynn county jail awaiting the arrival of an Alabama officer. Although he could have escaped any day last week from Middleton's camp in Camden county, Bell remained at the place and voluntarily accompanied Mr. Middleton to Brunswick.

"I was ragged and sick. I had tried everywhere to get work, but no one wanted me," said Bell last night. "I escaped six weeks ago from the State cotton mill at Spangler, Ala., where I was doing time. The guards had counted our squad that night and I slipped out from the ranks and reached the back fence before I was missed. I heard the blood hounds that night, but they were never on my trail.

"I tramped and rode on freight cars and reached Jacksonville, Fla., and tried everywhere for work, but no one wanted me.

"Finally I started back and when I reached Waverly Mr. Middleton took me in, fed me, gave me these clean clothes, a pair of shoes and a decent place to sleep in. I would not have done him dirt by running away, so I just stayed there. I told him to telegraph about me.

"I did not kill Stewart. It was in a shooting scrape. I was shooting at a man named Bailey. They said Stewart came into the saloon just in time to be hit by the bullet from my pistol.

"Yes, I know what it means—fifteen years more anyhow, but I prefer penitentiary to starving and tramping."

Governor Has Money for Soldiers in Late War

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Nov. 2.—Governor Gilchrist has before him the task of distributing to the officers and men who comprised Florida's quota of soldiers in the Spanish-American War, a sum of money which has recently been collected from the United States Government under the act of Congress providing for pay and rations of such soldiers. It appears that the amounts now to be distributed are additional amounts found to be due to numerous officers and men of the Florida troops, based upon a ruling of the Comptroller of the Currency as to the amount due these soldiers for pay and rations. It appears that the ruling of the Comptroller of the Currency held that the act of Congress made the Governors of the several States, as individuals, agents of the United States Government for the distribution of the amounts ascertained to be due to the soldiers of the respective States.

As to the soldiers who enlisted and were enrolled in the Federal service from Florida, it is anticipated that considerable difficulty will be found in locating many of the men at this time, after a lapse of ten years since the Spanish-American War.

Governor Gilchrist would be glad to have any officer or enlisted man who was enrolled in that service write him, stating his present postoffice address. The Governor would also like to have the present postoffice address of the legal representatives of any of the soldiers who may have died.

Wasn't Particular Who Watched Him Dressing

TAMPA, Nov. 2.—In response to complaints made by parties on Fortune street yesterday, says The Tribune, City Detective Evans arrested a traveling salesman who is well-known about the city and different points throughout the State at which he stops, but who prefers that the police name him "Jim Doe." The complaints were to the effect that the traveling man had disrobed himself in front of an open window, in his room in a lodging house and then proceeded to change his clothing. Neighbors, who were horrified at the proceedings, called the police.

According to Detective Evans, the traveling man, when taken in tow, was one of the most frightened specimens ever seen, but was very much relieved when he found out that by placing a bond of $6 he could escape going to jail. This morning he will either forfeit the $6 or appear before Judge Peeples to make an explanation of his conduct. Meanwhile his friends, those who have heard of the experience, are passing the pleasant joke on the salesman.

Registry Fee For Letters and Parcels Now 10 Cents

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 2.—By order of the Postmaster-General, the registry fee for letters and parcels is now ten cents, instead of eight cents as heretofore. The order went into effect yesterday, and is in accordance with the recommendations of a committee appointed to investigate the registration service.

The order also increased the maximum indemnity paid to the owner of a lost or rifled registered letter from $25 to $50, thus doubling the department's liability for valuable articles intrusted to its registry branch. This additional insurance of $25 for two cents is granted at a much lower rate than is offered for a similar amount by any private concern.

WERE HIGHLY ENTERTAINED.

People of Live Oak Made Veterans Feel That They Were Welcome.

The Nineteenth Annual Reunion of the Florida Division of Confederate Veterans held at Live Oak, October 20th and 21st, was one long to be remembered by the "Old Vets." It was a grand occasion from every point of view.

The citizens threw wide open their doors and extended their hospitality and all were royally entertained.

The occasion passed off without a hitch. The address by Col. Roberson was scholarly, well-termed and masterful; so was Col. Carter's. It did the Veterans good to hear them.

The writer was a guest of Mr. Cook and his estimable lady and two sweet little children, and he was the recipient of the kindest attention.

We had to leave on the 11:10 train, so could not attend the barbecue and ladies' reception, but we know it was a grand success, as everything the ladies undertake is successful.

The citizens of Live Oak will be remembered by the old soldiers always. OLD SOLDIER.

At the Baird Theatre.

Another large audience greeted the performance at the Baird last evening and on all sides the commendation was most favorable to the managers for putting out such a performance for such a small price. In addition to the three reels of motion pictures, illustrated songs, etc., they are giving a splendid act of vaudeville at each performance. They had arranged for a double bill all of this week, but owing to the sickness of Miss Drew she has been unable to fill her engagement, but in the meantime, Miss Vesta Wallace continues to delight her audiences. She is clever at dancing, besides she has a sweet voice, and her song and dance act is most pleasing.

A few more trust prosecutions netting $8,000,000, and we may expect to see Texas on a divided basis.

A man has to keep his heart warm by doing good. As soon as he ceases to do that the heart grows cold and becomes dead in selfishness.

Men cannot gain success by waiting for it to come to them. They must be up and doing, overcome difficulties, seek opportunities and be undismayed by passing failure. What others have done others can do.

Some people lie so easily and so habitually that when they do tell the truth it seems accidental. Their sin is matched by their folly or they would know that people do not believe them or trust them.

There is a wonderful power in a bright, cheerful smile to dispel gloom and sadness. It acts just as potently as does the warm smiling sun upon the fogs and mists that sometimes gather during the night and early morning.

The man who centers everything upon himself in the belief that he will thus gain happiness is mistaken. It is when men get away from themselves and do good to others they realize what joy and blessing there is in life.

The democracy of our public schools, as seen in the sitting side by side of the son of the poor man and the son of the rich man, puts a wholesome check upon class and caste feeling and is a potent factor in forming our national character.

Parents are sometimes guilty of unintentional cruelty to their little children in taking them on too long walks. They measure the children's ability to walk long distances by their own, forgetful of the fact that the undeveloped limbs tire easily.

A learned sociologist assures the American people that life is not so rushing as it was ten years ago. His assertion might carry some weight if it were not for the overwhelming proofs to the contrary. It is true that in some things labor saving devices have made business and domestic conditions easier, but on the other hand the increasing number of wants and desires, with the growing mania for haste in everything, makes life more intense than ever.

Even an optimist may be inclined to doubt that the world is getting better when the front page of a morning paper stares him in the face with its startling headlines of crime and misery. But he soon recovers his balance when he reflects that all this news is gathered from far and near, and that far outweighing it, though unrecorded, are the thrifty, industrious, honest and true lives of the great majority of people in well-nigh every community, and whose homes are marked by love, contentment and happiness. While no one may overlook the existence of gigantic wrongs and evils, yet day by day virtue and righteousness grow in power and influence and the world is getting better.

TIME FOR THE RAILROADS TO STOP KILLING PEOPLE.

It is a noteworthy fact, and too much can hardly be said in approbation of it, that at least four of the country's great railway systems are able to report a year's traffic without the killing of a single passenger. They are the Pennsylvania, the Northwestern, the Burlington and the Santa Fe. The Northwestern reports that the total number of passengers carried in the past fiscal year was 27,000,000; and the Santa Fe reports 12,600,000; the figures for the other roads are not at hand, but the Pennsylvania doubtless hauled a great many more than the Northwestern. These roads show how railroading can be conducted in America, and the public is going to demand that other systems profit by their example.

We are always glad when a jury returns a large verdict for the plaintiff in a railway personal injury suit, or as nearly glad as we can be about anything incident to a system that is altogether wrong. These damages, especially where death resulted, are usually punitive to a degree; but the lawyers see to it that the plaintiff does not get more than enough to offset his actual loss. The larger the damage recovered, the more expensive it is for railroads to kill people; and once you convince a railroad corporation that any system or practice is a source of loss, rather than a profit, it will discontinue that practice.

When we refer to the system of collecting damages for death and injury as a thing altogether wrong, we have in mind the delays, the inequality of the parties to the legal contest, the contingent fee lawyer and the enterprising claim agent; and the ideal of a plan of settlement that shall work promptly and equitably, so that the defendant pays but little more than actual damages, and the plaintiff receives nearly as much as actual damages.

The reasons advanced for the heavy annual casualty list from railroad accidents in this country are not excuses. Great distances and difficulties of operation, new roads, comparatively poor revenues and the resultant necessity of economy, fluctuating traffic—none of these things excuses reckless railway operation. The time has come for the public to demand that the railroads stop killing people, says The Asheville (N. C.) News.

All the asbestos mined in the United States in 1908 was mined in Georgia and Vermont, and the total output of various grades was 938 short tons, an increase from 1907 of more than 42 per cent, says The San Francisco Argonaut. The total value of the output of refined asbestos in 1908 was $19,624, as compared with $11,889 in 1907, an increase of 64 per cent. According to the report on asbestos by J. S. Didler in the "Mineral Resources," series of the United States Geological Survey for 1908, the increase in value thus indicated is due to the greater production than ever before of the chrysotile, the variety of fibrous mineral which is best adapted to textile processes and commands the highest prices.

The power of the country press in promoting good citizenship and thereby forming the true American character is far greater than many people imagine and is vastly superior to that of the press in large cities. There are reasons for this. The large city daily is but skimmed while the country paper is read. The moral tone of the country press is also higher, as a rule, than that of the city press, and it takes more positive and advanced ground on ethical questions. Then, too, its constituency is more reliable, thoughtful and responsive.

JAKE HODGES AND ST. PAUL.

Jake Hodges of Texas had toiled long and earnestly at a country convention in Lamar county, and the heat of the battle had got into his head. He staggered out into the cool night air and unknowingly wandered into the grounds of an insane asylum. Mistaking a solemn, spectral figure for a tree Jake leaned against it. It moved and spoke, saying:

"Peace be with you."

"Well I'm derned," said Jake mopping his brow. "Thought you was a post. I shore begs yoh pahdon."

"You are forgiven," said the stranger.

"My name's Hodges," said Jake, as he sought to collect his flittering wits and make the amende honorable. "What might youh's be?"

"Men called me Paul when I was on earth," was the reply. "Some, indeed, were kind enough to call me Saint Paul."

"Well this is a piece of luck," cried Hodges. "Dern my skin, but ah'm plumb glad to see yoh. Thehe's something ah've been wantin't tuh ask you fer a long time. Mind, you don't have to answer ef yoh don' want tuh, but ah've been curious to know ef yoh eveh got an answer to that long letter yoh wrote to the Ephesians."—From Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.

JAPANESE SUGAR-CANE FOR FORAGE

By John M. Scott, Florida Agri. Experiment Station
Press Bulletin No. 129

The Japanese sugar-cane is one of the best forage crops for the farmers of Florida to grow. It is easy to propagate, requires only a minimum amount of cultivation, and the yield that can be secured is very large. A good crop will yield from 20 to 30 tons of feed per acre. This yield, under ordinary conditions, is two to three times as much as we can expect from sorghum or corn. Not only is the yield in tons more than from almost any other crop, but Japanese cane is much richer in carbohydrates than corn or sorghum, and for that reason is a more valuable forage crop. It does not produce its maximum yield until about the third year after planting.

Feeding Value

The chief feeding value of Japanese cane lies in the large amount of carbohydrates that it contains. In combination with velvet beans, it gives an almost ideal ration for either beef or milk production. It furnishes the necessary carbohydrates (fat-producing material), while the velvet beans supply a large amount of protein (bone and muscle-producing material). By growing these two crops, Florida farmers can have an abundance of good winter feed, for fattening cattle or feeding dairy cows. In the steer-feeding experiment, conducted during the winter of 1908-9, it was found that when Japanese cane was fed with a light ration of corn, velvet beans, and sweet potatoes, an average daily gain of 3.12 pounds was obtained. Hogs are also fond of Japanese cane. They readily eat the hard canes rejected by cattle and horses. A number of farmers are now using Japanese cane for fattening their hogs.

Silage, Pasture, and Hay

Japanese sugar-cane may be used as pasture or for soiling, during November, December, and January. Or it may be cut and cured as hay, to be used during the winter and spring seasons. Perhaps the best method of preparing this crop for feed is to put it in the silo. Silage is undoubtedly the cheapest form of roughage that we can provide for our cattle and horses. Because Japanese sugar-cane gives us such a heavy yield of forage per acre, it is without doubt one of the cheapest, if not the cheapest, of the crops we can grow for silage. When used for winter pasture it will not be advisable to pasture it later than March 1. If pastured after growth begins in the spring, the canes are likely to be killed or at least weakened in vitality, and the result will be a poor stand and a small unsatisfactory yield. If cut and cured for dry forage it will be found advisable to run it through a feed-cutter before feeding. This incurs additional expense, but the increased feeding value obtained will more than pay for it.

Planting

The cost of planting is only a small item of expense, when we consider that one planting will continue to produce good yields for fifteen or twenty years, if properly handled. The ground should be thoroughly plowed to a depth of six inches. Then harrow with tooth harrow, and mark off the rows with a marker. The rows should be not less than six feet apart. When planted at this distance it will be only eight or ten years until the entire ground will be covered, as the canes rattoon very rapidly. After the ground is plowed and harrowed the rows can be thrown out with a disc cultivator. The canes are then dropped by hand in a double line. The disc cultivator can again be used to good advantage in covering the canes, the discs being reversed and set as wide apart as possible. If the discs are not set wide apart they will throw a large percentage of the canes out on top of the ground. It will be found advisable to cut the canes into short pieces containing about four eyes. The top immature parts of the canes should be discarded, as they will not produce strong plants. If care is taken in selecting only good healthy seed canes, 4000 to 5000 whole canes will be sufficient to plant an acre of ground. The canes can be planted at any time from November to April 1. Spring planting is advised for north and west Florida. If planting is postponed until late in the season the seed canes must be protected from cold by banking, as a heavy frost will kill the buds.

We know very little as to the best fertilizer for this crop. However, good results have been secured by the use of the same formula as for corn, applying from 400 to 600 pounds per acre.

Facts For Sick Women

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or secured so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every woman you meet has either been benefited by it, or knows some one who has.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made exclusively from roots and herbs, and is perfectly harmless.

The reason why it is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the female organism, restoring it to healthy and normal activity.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials such as the following prove the efficiency of this simple remedy.

Minneapolis, Minn.:—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women, I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. Within three months I was a perfectly well woman.

"I want this letter made public to show the benefits to be derived from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. John G. Moldan, 2115 Second St. North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

we are not going to pour money down a rat-hole when we put millions into the improvements that are contemplated. We must be right before we go ahead."

Ex-Governor Vardaman of Mississippi, whose controversy with President Roosevelt made him known throughout the country, and who has carried the animosities of that controversy into criticisms of President Taft in public utterances, called upon President Taft. Mr. Vardaman heard the President speak at the fair grounds. Calling at the hotel Mr. Vardaman explained that he would not be at the banquet last night and that he would like very much to meet the President. Word was conveyed to Mr. Taft and he sent word he would see the former Governor at once. He greeted Mr. Vardaman cordially and the two were closeted for five minutes or more. Both were smiling when the interview ended.

COULD NOT CURE WEEPING ECZEMA

Disease Began over Ear and Spread till Face and Neck were Raw—Itching, Inflammation and Soreness were Terrible—Lasted Over a Year and All Treatments Failed

UNTIL CUTICURA AGAIN PROVED GREAT SUCCESS

"Eczema began over the top of my ear. It cracked and then began to spread. I had three different doctors and tried several things, but they did me no good. At last one side of my face and my neck clear up to my hair were raw. The water ran out of it so that I had to wear medicated cotton, and it was so inflamed and sore that I had to put a piece of cloth over my pillow to keep the water from it, and it would stain the cloth a sort of yellow. The eczema itched so that it seemed as though I could tear my face all to pieces. The disease began in the fall and I did everything for it until the next winter. Then I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and it was not more than three months before it was all healed up. I still use the Cuticura Resolvent Pills once in a while to cleanse the blood. I am very thankful that I tried Cuticura, and I can recommend it to any one. Miss Ann Pearsons, Northfield, Vt., Dec. 19, '07."

The Check System.

John Palmer, who died some years ago in rather straitened circumstances in a little town in Michigan, was the inventor of the check system. Palmer was a fiddler and assumed responsibility for the hats, coats and wraps of those who came to his dancing parties. In keeping things straight he gave numbered checks for the articles committed to his care. Some railroad men who attended one of the dances noticed how perfectly the idea worked and appropriated it, and in a short time the system was adopted all over the country. As is so often the case, the inventor got nothing out of it.—New York American.

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition. Sold by all druggists.

LOVE FOR TITLES.

The Way the Average German Burger Lengthens His Name.

The average German burgher's love of titles is a source of never ending fun to the rest of the German population and of continual ridicule to the rest of the world. Any one caring to see how far some people of the fatherland will go in this direction need only have a look at a hotel register at a summer resort. He will see added to the name of the guest the most curious combinations of appellations drawn together to form a title. He will, for instance, find:

A "Technischen Provinzialfeuersozietatsinspecter" (a technical provincial fire insurance inspector).

A "Geheimen Expedierenden Sekretar im Ministerium der Offentlichen Arbeiten" (meaning a special sort of secretary at the ministry of public works).

A—to continue in English as well as possible—"cashier president of the Royal Saxon railway," a "royal railroad subsecretary."

The ladies are not better. "Frau Verwittwetobersteuercontrolleurin" is quite usual and means "Mrs. Widowed Supertax Collector." Then there are the "Mrs. Secretary and Calculator" and "Mrs. Widowed General Agent." The best of all, however, is a title which a lady entered in the register of a hotel at which I recently stayed. It read, "Mrs. Prison Warder and Children."—Pall Mall Gazette.

TAMING A BIRD.

Teaching a Feathered Pet to Trust You Is Not Difficult.

No creature is more jealous or sensitive than a bird. It is easy, however, to win the heart of almost any bird, and that without starving him or making him think he has mastered you. Simply talk to him a good deal.

Place his cage near you on your desk or work table, and retain his choicest dainty to give to him with your own fingers. Let him know that he can never have that particular thing unless he takes it from you, and he will soon learn, if you are patient and do not disconcert him by fixing your eyes upon him.

After this he will more readily take it from your lips, and then when you let him out of his cage, after the first excitement is over, he will come to you, especially if you have a call to which you have accustomed him, and accept the dainty from you while free.

As soon as he becomes really convinced that you will not hurt him or try to catch him or interfere in any way with his liberty he will give way to his boundless curiosity about you. He will pull your hair, pick at your eyes and give you as much of his company as you desire.—New York Press.
